

Proposed DRS default transfer process

We are proposing that in undefended DRS cases, the complainant should have the right to a transfer of the domain name registration on payment of a fee of £200 (plus VAT).
Please read our consultation paper for full details of this proposed default transfer process and then answer the questions below.

This document contains respondents between 33 and 33 inclusive.

1. What do you think about our proposal for a default transfer process?

- I agree with the proposal
- I don't mind one way or the other
- I disagree with the proposal

2. Please give your reasons for why you feel this way about the proposal

Being a solicitor I relate this to a "default judgment" in civil proceedings. If a Plaintiff sues and a Defendant does not defend within the specified time set by the rules of procedure, then the Plaintiff is entitled to judgment by default. This has been the rule for as long as I can remember and it works well.
