

Proposed DRS default transfer process

We are proposing that in undefended DRS cases, the complainant should have the right to a transfer of the domain name registration on payment of a fee of £200 (plus VAT).
Please read our consultation paper for full details of this proposed default transfer process and then answer the questions below.

This document contains respondents between 26 and 26 inclusive.

1. What do you think about our proposal for a default transfer process?

- I agree with the proposal
- I don't mind one way or the other
- I disagree with the proposal

2. Please give your reasons for why you feel this way about the proposal

Your charges are very high, anyone can register a site for less than £6 for 2 years, if they do that you want to charge us £200 to transfer it?. I have used this service already, but I only had to pay what the other person paid for registering the domain in the first place, again this was less than £6

Why should anyone pay you £200 if you cannot contact the person who registered the domain. If anything, the transfer should be free or the price charged by the online domain name provider.

I hope I never have to use your service, and think I should contact trading standards with your proposal.

3. Please give us your contact details
