

Proposed DRS default transfer process

We are proposing that in undefended DRS cases, the complainant should have the right to a transfer of the domain name registration on payment of a fee of £200 (plus VAT).
Please read our consultation paper for full details of this proposed default transfer process and then answer the questions below.

This document contains respondents between 125 and 125 inclusive.

1. What do you think about our proposal for a default transfer process?

I agree with the proposal

I don't mind one way or the other

I disagree with the proposal

2. Please give your reasons for why you feel this way about the proposal

Failure to respond to a DRS should not mean the respondents domains can be given away by Nominet to the first person willing to pay £200.

I find this whole idea absurd and all the more infuriating that it was never mentioned in the recent consultation. I have to wonder whether there is any point in commenting on these surveys as history would suggest that Nominet will forge ahead with their own agenda regardless of overwhelming stakeholder disagreement with this proposal.
