

I believe that the .net.uk should be opened up to all, the reason being since many ISPs prefer to use .com or .net or .co.uk addresses hardly any use .net.uk that are visible/prominent and are used for usually private internal users, on this basis I think it's best to open it up therefore allowing people to have access to variation of domain names which are currently taken on other .uk second levels, thanks for listening to my short comments

regards

wasim mir