

Hello,

I think that all members should have equal voting rights.

This is not purely a selfish position, as I think that Nominet – to continue growing in an unbiased and fair way – should attract new members. What advantage or incentive is there for new members, if tag holders / members with a large number of domain registrations hold all the cards?

I note Pipex Communications' response, and unfortunately they do nothing to console me that the running of Nominet isn't going to turn into just another branch of the "old boy's network"... and yes, I did go to a public school.

Best wishes,

Alex
